GFWC Texas Assists Victims of Hurricane Harvey

Since Hurricane Harvey made landfall last Friday, people in Houston, across the Gulf Coast, and around the country have come to the aid of those affected by the devastating flooding in southeastern Texas. Many of our own clubwomen have been impacted and many are offering assistance. GFWC Texas President Patti Poe says, "I have received phone calls and emails from all over the United States from the smallest clubs to state presidents asking what they might do to help in Texas."

In response to this outpouring of concern, GFWC Texas has established a fund to aid hurricane victims. If you would like to support their effort, send monetary donations to: GFWC Texas, 2312 San Gabriel, Austin, TX 78704-5014. Please write "Hurricane Harvey" on the memo line of your check. Once flood waters have abated, the funds will be used to purchase crucial items such as food, water, clothing, and household necessities for victims.

Over the last week, we have witnessed incredible acts of generosity as neighbor helps neighbor; as first-responders work tirelessly to

The Annual August Board Meeting and Day in Boston

Over 170 GFWC leaders gathered for the 2017 Board of Directors meeting August 24-27 in Quincy, Massachusetts. The event granted board members the opportunity to tour the John F. Kennedy Presidential Library and Museum, as well as visit the Edward M. Kennedy Institute for the United States Senate as part of Saturday's Day in Boston event.

This was a particularly auspicious time for GFWC's board members to visit the John F. Kennedy Presidential Library and Museum as 2017 marks the centennial of the president's birth. Among the first to see the new exhibition "JFK 100—Milestones and Mementos," board members related to the president on a personal level by viewing items from his home life.

After reminiscing at the Presidential Library, board members traveled to the adjacent Edward M. Kennedy Institute (EMK Institute) to learn about the workings and achievements of the United States Senate. At EMK, board members watched the Great Senate Debates program -- a blend of live performance and historic film footage focusing on the Civil Rights Act of 1964. They also took part in the Today's Vote program, assuming the role of senator and debating the merits of legislation recently considered by the real Senate in Washington, D.C.

While the Day in Boston gave our leaders the opportunity to learn valuable information that will aid their advocacy endeavors, it was just one part of the Board of Directors meeting. Board members spent an additional two days discussing the Federation's goals, planning for the year ahead, and listening to influential speakers. One of the presenters, Executive Director of the Turning Point Suffragist Memorial Association Patricia Depew Wirth, spoke of the need to commemorate the U.S. suffrage movement including GFWC's substantial role in the fight for equality.

GFWC International President Sheila E. Shea took great pride in welcoming the 2016-2018 Board of Directors to her home state of Massachusetts. "I am certain GFWC's leaders gained a better understanding of why I cherish Boston -- both the people and the history -- from their brief stay. I also know they will return to their own hometowns with a renewed sense of commitment to our great Federation," stated President Shea.

You're invited to join GFWC International President Sheila E. Shea and your fellow clubwomen for an unparalleled experience – sailing the Panama Canal.

While on the voyage you will dine on fresh, local cuisine, visit colorful towns, and unwind on sun-kissed beaches.

87 Miles for Smiles

Margie Gonzalez has spent the last few months walking around the local lake and getting closer to her goal of providing 20 surgeries for those in need with each mile. Margie, a member of the Plant City Woman's Club (Florida), was raising funds for GFWC Partner Operation Smile by walking 87 miles, a mile for every year she has been alive. When she completed her "87 Miles for Smiles" fundraiser on August 25, she was accompanied by her fellow clubwomen and greeted at the finish line with a special brunch to celebrate her achievement.

Margie's walk is the latest fundraiser supported by her club's International Outreach Committee and their Chairman Patricia Wolff. During the last year, the club has raised over $4,000 hosting cooking classes, an international fashion show, and a yard sale. Margie's astounding success can be attributed to both her passion for the cause and the promotional efforts of Chairman Wolff. In recent weeks, Margie's story has appeared in two local newspapers, on the pages of a magazine, on social media, and on the area's morning news program. Thanks to this media savvy campaign Margie has received contributions from the local community and from as far away as Canada.

In one of her many media appearances, Margie was quoted as saying, "Whenever I would wake up and just be too tired to go walk or considering stopping, I would just think of the faces of the children who have successfully had the surgery and suddenly I was ready to go. They're my inspiration."

With her remarkable and giving heart, clubwomen will no doubt consider Margie an inspiration. Happy 87th birthday!

Raising Awareness of Human Trafficking in Louisiana

Human trafficking occurs across America and throughout Louisiana. Children from every walk of life are being abducted, deceived, or cajoled into harmful situations from which they may never escape. Becky Akins, GFWC Louisiana's Director of Junior Clubs, was horrified to learn that Louisiana is one of the top 20 states of human trafficking. In an effort to shed light on the issue, she partnered with State President Denise Cannatella in hope that they could make a difference.

Becky and GFWC Louisiana are supporting the construction of Metanoia, a proposed safe house that will offer medical, educational, and psychological assistance to adolescent victims of human trafficking. Through both in-kind and monetary donations, GFWC

Louisiana is ensuring survivors of human trafficking will have a place to go and receive the help they need to recover.

The issue is becoming an increasing concern, and as Becky says, "People do not like to talk about it." However, part of her project is to get people talking about it, and learning about it, because that is the only way to create change and help victims. As she remarked, "If we can help one victim or bring awareness to one mother so that she recognizes the signs before her daughter becomes a victim, then the project will be a success. I think just giving this appalling crime a spotlight and offering support for law enforcement officers who fight this daily is a win for us. I hope to continue to raise awareness and educate people in our state of how they can prevent human trafficking."

Human trafficking is a serious issue, and conversations about it are necessary. Luckily, GFWC clubwomen like Becky are making sure those conversations are taking place.
